

Ask A Doctor Health and Wellness Campaign

Welcome

CMS explained that concern about text messages in healthcare was not just about transmission security. There was the potential for a lack of access controls on the senders' and receivers' devices, stored data may not necessarily be secure and encrypted, and the privacy of patients is not guaranteed. Another concern was information transmitted via text messages also needs to be entered into the patient record and made available for retrieval.

Health Care Advice Anytime

If the patient suffered a major negative health event, are you responsible if you were unable to respond at that time? Subscribe.

Ask A Doctor

Technology such as email and text can be an incredibly powerful tool in medicine. I communicate with colleagues and with consultants.

Health Resources

Allowing access during time at home with family and during weekends and holidays may also reduce even further a physician's "downtime".
